DETAILED ACTION

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 44-47 and 49-51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 44-47 and 49-51 are directed an invention that merely performs calculations and manipulations of data. In order for such a claimed invention that merely performs calculations and manipulations of data to be statutory, the claimed invention must accomplish a practical application, and is not directed to a preemption of a calculation and/or manipulation data . That is the claimed invention must transform an article or physical object to a different state or thing, or produce a useful, concrete and tangible result and not cover every substantial practical application . See State Street 47 USPQ2d, Benson 175 USPQ , and “Interim Guidelines for Examination of Patent Applications for Patent Subject Matter Eligibility”, OG Notices: 22 November 2005. It is clear from claims 44-47 and 49-51 that the claimed inventions merely involve in calculations and manipulations of data. They do not transform an article or physical object to a different state or thing. The input are numbers and the output are also number. The result produced by the invention as recited in the claims invention does not have real world values but merely a set of numbers without a practical application recited in the claims that makes the result useful, concrete and tangible. The recitation “to use said floating-point value and display a result of said use” in the claim 44 does not constitute a practical application of the invention that make the result useful, concrete and tangible. Therefore, claims 44-47 and 49-51 are directed to non-statutory subject matter as the claimed invention fails to accomplish a practical application. Further, since the claims appear to cover every substantial practical application, they are also directed to a preemption of the claimed manipulations and calculations of data.

3. Claims 2-43,48 and 52-83 are allowed.
